The chair of the committee, Andy Karduna, came to the March 12 meeting to present details of the search to the Senate. Due to time constraints, his report was postponed until the next meeting. However, given the full agenda of the April 9 meeting, he was asked to given a written report, rather than a verbal one.

Details of the search can be found here:

Prior to this being posted, the committee and President Gottfredson reached out to Senate President, Margie Paris. This resulted in some modifications of the job description (eg, the FAR providing an annual report to the Senate) and a member of the Senate being added to the committee (Miriam Deutsch).

In addition to hearing from faculty directly responding to the posting, the chair of the committee has reached out to faculty suggested by members of the committee, Deans, Associate Deans, and IAC chairs from the past decade.

At present, approximately 50 faculty members have been contacted about the position and we are optimistic that we will have a good pool of interested candidates by the end of this week. However, the search may be continued if a sufficient number of qualified candidates do not express an interest in the position. When we are done with our review, we will submit a list of names to President Gottfredson, who will then select the next FAR.
