

I. Policy Statement

The university is committed to equal access to programs, course offerings, facilities, admission and employment for all of its employees, students and campus community members. It is the policy of the university to maintain an environment free of harassment and free of prohibited discrimination against any person because of age, race, color, ancestry, national or ethnic origin, religion, service in the uniformed services (as defined in state and federal law), veteran status, sex, sexual orientation, marital or family status, pregnancy, pregnancy-related conditions, disability, gender, perceived gender, gender identity, genetic information or the use of leave protected by state or federal law. Prohibited discrimination, discriminatory harassment, including sexual harassment and retaliation impede the realization of the university's educational mission and shall not be tolerated at the University of Oregon.

- C. Sexual Harassment is a type of sex discrimination which is defined as any sexual advance, any request for sexual favors, or other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature when:

Students and Employees who report to Confidential Employees always retain the choice to make a complaint, as outlined in the section below. Students, Employees and Campus Community Members with questions regarding the university's processes are encouraged to contact the Title IX Coordinator or AAEO. For further information regarding Confidential Employees' privacy practices, please visit the website referenced below.

We recognize that employees who experience Prohibited Discrimination, Harassment or Sexual Harassment within departments, institutes, or programs face unique obstacles. Rather than reporting to other employees who are Responsible Employees, and who may have conflicts of interest based on existing relationships within those units, we encourage employees experiencing Prohibited Discrimination, Harassment or Sexual Harassment to utilize the confidential resources available to them in order to explore forms of support and protection and in order to fully understand their options relating to filing a complaint.

Note: Information reported by Responsible Employees to the Office of Crisis Intervention and Sexual Violence Support Services will be passed on to the Title IX Coordinator.

If the university initiates an investigation, it will be performed by a neutral investigator. In responding to incidents of Prohibited Discrimination, the university will follow state and federal law, university policies and any applicable collective bargaining agreements. Employees and Students may also choose to exercise applicable grievance rights. A complaining party's options, including external reporting options, will be explained to that person by AAEO or the Title IX Coordinator, as appropriate.

- A. Against a Student: If the underlying incident involves Sex Discrimination, Sexual Harassment or Retaliation arising out of an act of Sex Discrimination against a Student, meaning that the Student is the alleged wrongdoer, the university will follow the process outlined in the sexual misconduct standard operating procedures, referenced below. If it relates to other forms of Prohibited Discrimination, Harassment or Retaliation against a Student, the University will follow the process outlined in the Student Conduct Code.
- B. Against an Employee or Campus Community Member: If the underlying action involves Prohibited Discrimination, Harassment, Sexual Harassment or Retaliation against an Employee or Campus Community Member, meaning that the Employee or Campus Community Member is the alleged wrongdoer, the university will generally follow: (1) The employee discrimination complaint process for complaints made by Employees and Campus Community Members; or (2)

The Student discrimination complaint process for complaints made by Students. Both of these processes are referenced below.

VII. Interim Measures

Regardless of whether an investigation or university process is initiated, the university will provide interim measures as appropriate, which for Students may include academic accommodations, housing accommodations, workplace or transportation accommodations, reasonable protective measures, health and counseling services, financial aid, visa and immigration assistance, safety planning, legal support options and information regarding other on and off-campus resources and for employees may include change of employment conditions, information and assistance regarding employee resources and other reasonable measures. In deciding which interim measures to implement, the university will attempt to mitigate the impact on affected parties, while also balancing the rights of the alleged wrongdoer.

VIII. Confidentiality

To the extent possible, the university will protect the confidentiality of Responsible Employees, complainants, witnesses and accused parties and, if information is disclosed, will disclose it on a need to know basis. However, it is important to understand that: (1) in order to investigate the matter and provide the other party with notice of the underlying allegations and an opportunity to respond, the university may need to reveal the identity of the complaining party, the Responsible Employee and relevant witnesses; and (2) Employees and Students have rights under federal or state law or pursuant to applicable bargaining agreements to review and inspect records relating to an investigation. That being said, for purposes of public records requests and to the extent allowed by law, the university will treat all materials submitted during an investigation relating to a report or a complaint of prohibited discrimination as submitted in confidence, unless otherwise noted.

IX. Free Expression and Academic Freedom

In all its actions, the university will respect the rights of freedom of expression and academic expression, as set forth in university policies and applicable bargaining agreements.

X. External Complaints

The university encourages all individuals with a pertinent complaint to follow the process in this policy. This means that Employees who have engaged in Prohibited Discrimination or Retaliation may face discipline up to and including termination. Students who have engaged in Prohibited discrimination may face sanctions up to and including suspension or expulsion. Individuals who make bad-faith complaints may be subject to disciplinary action, student conduct code violations or other appropriate corrective action. Responsible employees who fail to report as required by this policy may be subject to discipline, which may include a letter of reprimand or other appropriate corrective measures. Campus Community Members who violate this policy may be trespassed from campus and may otherwise lose their right to use university property and/or to participate in university-sponsored programs and activities.
