

Stephanie Womack, Office of the Vice President for Research and Innovation

OA Council seat

I am a passionate and compliance-centric professional who will promote and facilitate communication for the UO OA community. I currently serve as the Director of Animal Welfare Services, which provides a unique perspective that will strengthen the bonds between OAs and the research community. My goals for serving on this council are to create opportunities for collaboration and collegiality across the various OA positions, advocate for underrepresented groups to ensure that the council is representative of the population at large, and enable discussions for pertinent and significant issues. It would be my honor to serve in this capacity and to further the mission of the OA council and the Oregon way.
