I am a proud quadruple Duck, working on finishing a certificate in Nonprofit Management this summer through PPPM. I have also worked in a variety of places on campus, from the residence halls as an R.A., Senior R.A., Senior Desk Assistant and Conference Assistant, to the Office of Student Advocacy, to tutoring for instructors and working as a GE in the Veterans Center to Assistant Dean for Student Affairs at the Law School, a brief stint supporting a new project at the School of Education, and now at the Office of Academic Advising. All I can say is that I still love the U of O as much today as I did when I first stepped foot on campus in the fall of 1988, and I still am passionate about making it a better place for students, faculty and staff.

I believe that my long history at the University of Oregon, combined with long stints where I have stepped away and had experiences elsewhere, combined with my passion for collaboration and support of our fellow Ducks make me an ideal candidate for this position. I have learned to work well with others, listen to all ideas presented, and help flesh out what the ultimate goals are that are being expressed by advocates. Many times positions that seem very different can find common ground if that is done, and once common ground is found, a way forward is much easier to be forded.

I took the last year learning my new role in OAA and am now ready to jump in to helping out where I can at the University level if my fellow colleagues believe I can be of use.
