

Barbara Muraca,
Associate Professor
Department of Philosophy

I am an associate professor of Environmental Philosophy and Associate Director of the Department of Philosophy. Before moving to UO in 2019 I served as representative of faculty in different universities both in the US and abroad. In these different institutions I have always resisted the neoliberalization of higher education and stood up for the essential role the Humanities play in education, research, and society against various institutional attempts at marginalizing them. I am a proud member of UA and very committed to representing faculty's interests and needs. I strongly believe in shared governance and in collective decision making processes.
